Yet again, I see Sunnica has made proposals for change to the grid connection at Burwell.

Unsurprisingly, they lost their original allocated site due to bad communication with the National Grid, which historically has caused confusion on many aspects of this proposal, for everyone during the whole consultation period.

The grid connection should have been confirmed at an early stage.

Yet again, Sunnica, has clearly not made their mind up to what they do need and want, how many more times are they going to challenge the agreed proposal; which I have strongly disagreed with from the onset.

If there were incremental changes, surely that would open the floodgate for Sunnica to change the whole scheme without having a new consultation !

I strongly disagree to any changes made.

Your Mrs. Flindall

During the consultation it was proved by University studies that this proposal would not benefit the governments Net Zero
