

The cumulative scale of this project and other existing and proposed infrastructure is staggering. The existing solar at Yelden/Chelveston is plenty of solar land use for this small rural area. The proposed loss of land through the East West railway line, the new A428 is enough for north Bedfordshire. I don't blame farmers for taking money for doing nothing given the state of farming but why should tax payers pay a double subsidy...to the farmer and the solar company and have good grade agricultural land wrecked because of incompetence in planning.No one locally will benefit from this plan
