

I have read the latest from the applicant on the website. I noticed many times where they say that the information will be provided in the dco. So many aspects that they say will be answered later will be after the public are allowed to question, as will the inspector. This is not democracy working well. The applicant has produced many thousands of pages of information, if they still don't have all the answers until the dco their application is by definition not complete and the inspector should though out it and make them submit a new planning application when it is completed.