

I am still very concerned about the damage to good agricultural land which could be used to make UK more self sufficient in food. Also there is potential for damage to Dornford Lane which is a haven for wildlife and an ancient Saxon Way, which should be carefully preserved. Lastly , we should be building more solar panels on roofs of buildings or say by motorways or other wasted sites; not on such a scale across farm land and ruining the appearance of the countryside