I have at various stages in the examination expressed concern that the Applicant has failed to justify the building of a solar farm of this size in this location on productive farmland when other options exist. Hitherto the points I have made about the advantages of a distributed generation strategy have not been addressed and believe that, in conjunction with the numerous issues raised by other interested parties, the Applicant should not be permitted to construct an 800MW solar power station in this location.

It is neither the best technical or environmental solution and certainly not in the national interest.
