

Dear Sir,

This proposed solar farm application is far too large and I question its value.

I am concerned that it is using up too much valuable agricultural land.

Whilst solar power has its place in helping us to meet net zero I do not think that this development has been shown to be efficient. These solar panels are more than likely to be outdated before proving beneficial.

Its creation is likely to be disproportional to the disruption of the landscape.

Being this size it will do more harm to our wellbeing than good. Judith Massey.
