

Objection to Botley West Solar Farm

PVDP didn't have time to complete the RVAA - and yet are asking to be trusted to build this enormous scheme. If they cannot even complete a thorough examination and consultation with the hundreds of people who would be affected by this ill conceived scheme how can they possibly be trusted to work in our interests after permission is granted? They have not answered questions about The airport, they haven't worked out how to cross the Thames, they don't know where the ugly great substation will go, they haven't even decided on how big the buffer zones will be for people who are facing the prospect of being surrounded by glaring glass panels. There are so many unanswered questions which shows a cavalier attitude to the people who live in this much loved landscape. They don't care about people or wildlife or historical sites and are focussed on maximum profit. PVDP should at the very least have done a proper consultation and survey and if they cannot then their application should be rejected.
