

Since the beginning of this development Springwell Solar Farm have not given true representation of this miasma. Their marketing literature showed false images, no actual images of a real solar farm etc. I was personally promised information and indeed a visit to an EDF site at Sutton Bridge - never happened, again, lies to cover the reality. I have emailed for information, again, no response. If this development goes ahead I fear for the future of the small rural communities that will be forever defined by this monolith. I fear for the future of my daughter's generation who will be left with the detritus when the money moves to the next big thing. No one and I mean no one will answer how the millions of solar panels and components will be disposed of, how can this be allowed to continue without a clear policy of how it will be done without contributing to more damage to the environment. It is something no one wants to address. We cannot grant permission to developers until they are legally responsible for their rubbish. We must hold ministers to account for this too, they must be responsible for their decision and be called to a court of law if it is found that sites do not operate a clear, sustainable, environmentally appropriate solution. Developers must be responsible for the environmental impact for the manufacture of solar related products and produce statements giving carbon footprint for all components and related activities mined, produced etc to complete panels etc. The stretch of A15 is already notorious for accidents this site will impact on an already dangerous stretch of road and undoubtedly result in more casualties. I will be about 2-3 fields away from battery storage site. I fear for safety should a fire occur the area is not conducive to such a site with the threat of leakage and toxins entering underground aquifer. This is a crucial source of fresh water for various uses including drinking and agriculture which this is an agricultural area with many businesses, families reliant on it remaining agricultural, feeding the nation at a time when Government works towards upping war footing - if we can feed our nation we are stronger, we learnt this from history. I feel strongly that I have a human right to live my life in the area I chose to live without harassment from this development, to be able to go about my life without ministers dictating how my local environment will be. Once this development begins it will be the death knell for our environment, our wildlife, our health both physical and mental, [REDACTED] [REDACTED] There will be deaths if this development goes ahead that's how invasive this is. I fail to understand how a minister is allowed to give go ahead following rejection from residents, Council's and Planning Inspectorate! There is no good to come from this industrialisation of the countryside.
