

Living in Botolph Claydon we enjoy access to open countryside and rural foot paths, this allows for recreation and exercise. The solar farm development would severely impact our enjoyment and benefits. The sight of such a massive solar site would be ugly, noisy and will destroy our enjoyment of the natural world.

We are also concerned about the battery storage facility close by and the dangers of fire from this site. and the subsequent pollution.

Building such an industrial site in the middle of the countryside would be detrimental to our life here, solar panels should go on roofs not open land.

As a community we have already suffered from the HS2 and East west rail traffic which has destroyed our roads and lanes. The potholes make it impossible for me to drive at night as there is the constant risk of bursting a tyre. Adding the Solar site development will only destroy the roads further.
