Dear Sirs

I confirm that I have used AI tools as research and drafting aid in preparing material submitted to the examination. I do not keep a contemporaneous log of every instance of AI use, so unless I state otherwise it should be assumed that my submissions since before this examination began may have been prepared in whole or in part with AI assistance. I use these tools in a similar way to other research aids such as internet search engines and reference works: to gather background, explore wording options, summarise information and help present material clearly. The AI tools I currently use include Gemini, Copilot and ChatGPT. I treat AI outputs as prompts or suggestions rather than final authoritative content; I personally review, verify and, where necessary, correct any material informed by AI and I accept full responsibility for the accuracy, completeness and legality of all material I submit. I confirm that I have used AI tools in a manner intended to comply with applicable data protection, copyright and other legal obligations and that I remain the author and responsible party for the content and any consequences arising from it.

Yours faithfully

Stephen Fox
