I am not sure if this is the correct way to make a comment on an issue concerning the Lime Down application but here goes.

The road from Grittleton to Hullavington is a narrow country lane with difficult passing conditions and has always been this way. Wiltshire Council has declared itself opposed to the plans and presumably this includes Wiltshire Highways Authority. Recently however the road has been closed for many days to allow new passing places to be created. This has been done horribly badly and the road is even more untidy and scruffy than it has ever been.

My point however is that the only reason for doing this work must be to facilitate the increased HGV traffic forecast as a result of the Lime Down plans. Can this possibly be right and fair or is there some way that the proposer can influence council policy so significantly? Or should we assume it is mere coincidence??

Yours sincerely

Paul Kirk
