

Whilst I understand the need to manage the UK's energy supply, solar farms are not the answer. I especially object to the proposals surrounding Grendon because:

- 1 Its construction will cause havoc in country lanes in the area, affecting people's lives both commercially and socially.
- 2 The lost of agricultural land is to be abhorred; we should be increasing our food production, not reducing.
- 3 The BESS installation is massive and consequently the danger of fire is massive too.
- 4 The loss of footpaths and rights of way will be a huge loss to the local community, especially dog walkers and horse riders.
- 5 The roads in Grendon village are struggling to cope with current traffic and any development will only exacerbate the problem.
- 6 If solar panels have to be used, then please put them on rooftops and brownfield sites, NOT IN OUR BEAUTIFUL COUNTRYSIDE.
