Whilst accepting the list of issues to be considered in annex C of the Rule 6 letter is not intended to be fully comprehensive there is a clear distinction between cable routes and solar panel installations. The cable route construction presents different and significant risks of nuisance and damage - it should not be assumed these are acceptable because construction will be completed within 2 to 3 years. Can I suggest there should be an approach to consider these separately to the panel installations.
Similarly the BESS and substations present issues around operational noise and visual intrusion - will BESS and sub-stations be considered specifically?
