

I continue to be very concerned about the plans for Minster Marshes and the old Hoverport in Pegwell. Not only does the entire proposal seem misplaced and ill thought but there seems to be little concern for the immediate residents, roads, lorries, affected businesses as well as damaging to the environment and the people who so rely on the benefits it provides. Furthermore, this unique environment is home to a wide variety of wildlife and flora - migratory birds and indigenous species have increasingly less and less habitat in an area with a huge volume of development. I am also concerned that [REDACTED] has a poor track record of behaviour - they have been known to flaunt protocols and ignore [REDACTED] all over and damaging habitats as if they were waste ground. The marshes and reclaimed spaces give us all a small space where nature can be left alone allowing humans, animals and plants some way forward. This will all be jeopardised if this plan goes ahead.
