I am deeply saddened and appalled by the Sealink proposals for use of the Pegwell Bay Hoverport. This is, and should remain, a protected area. I personally use this area for walking almost every day of the year. [REDACTED] I find it incredibly helpful in supporting my mental well-being and on my travels there I have found several others who make use of this facility for similar reasons.

Government and Organisations are keen to express their credentials in preserving the National habitat and it is clear to most thoughtful citizens that this preservation of the environment is absolutely crucial, not only for the benefit and number of wildlife who inhabit this area (and there are very many), but also for human flourishing.

I can see no way in which the natural inhabitants of the salt-marshes will not be disturbed by the proposed usage since it is for this very reason it is prohibited for walkers to make use of this area.

I sincerely request that very serious and humane attention be given to the enormous damage that will be done should these proposals be allowed to go ahead.
