National Grid have changed the goal posts. They never said they always wanted to use the old hoverport. The hoverport has been rewilded, it is used by seals, birds, wildlife and people who wish to enjoy the area. There has been no thought regarding the stability of the site, the damage to the salt marsh, pollution to the larger area, Impact of industrial machinery in a rural area. How is that green? National grid are full of lies and deception in the guise of green energy.
