Hey - the government is soon to decide whether it's giving the green light to Rosebank in a move that will lock in late decades more climate-wrecking oil. I've just asked my MP to say no to new oil and gas – will you join me https://gbr01.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=https%3A%2F%2Faction.friendsoftheearth.uk%2Fcharge%2Fdemand-end-climate-wrecking-fossil-fuel-projects-now%3Fmc_eid%3D8151599926&data=04%7C01%7Chattiken%40hotmail.com%7C6f2e1ff4d7d6439f08ab08d8922f9f6c%7C84df9e7fe9f540eaa7f0e385f4fd6cb4%7C0%7C0%7C637395196019020195%7CUnknown%7CTWFpbGZsb3d8eyJFbXB0eU1hcGkiOnRydWUsIlYiOiIwLjAuMDAwMCIsIlAiOiJXaW4zMiIsIkFOIjoiTWFpbCIsIldUIjoyfQ%3D%3D%7C1000&sdata=%2BKrQ4a10%2Bu8kRKRAWfDQ6mLqFcU1%2FvIT19vHEmuFeeg%3D&reserved=0 If the government will soon decide whether to give the green light to Rosebank, a huge new oil field off Shetland, in a move that would lock in late decades more climate-wrecking oil production. We must stop it before another fossil fuel project pushes us further in the wrong direction.
We can already see the impacts of climate breakdown unfolding all around us. This year has brought record-breaking heatwaves, devastating flooding and raging wildfires at home and across the world. With the news that the government has just approved Jackdaw, we can't allow yet another new North Sea fossil fuel project to go ahead.
Rosebank won't lower our bills or make us more energy secure. Around 90% of its oil is expected to be exported, while oil companies and their shareholders pocket the profits. New oil and gas won't solve our energy challenges – they'll only make it harder to tackle the climate crisis.
Furthermore, the government must deliver on its promise to ban fracking. The current pause isn't written into law, and loopholes could still allow low-volume fracking to go ahead – putting communities at risk of earthquakes and environmental damage, while extracting yet more gas that's heating up our planet. A full, permanent ban is needed to finally close the door on fracking.
I am asking you to urgently take a stand and call on Prime Minister Andy Burnham and Energy Secretary Mattia Fabadhalla to end new oil and gas projects. More oil and gas won't deliver the secure, affordable energy we need. We require a rapid shift to clean energy and a just transition that protects workers and delivers good, secure green jobs.
Crucially, this protection must extend to our land here in Suffolk as well as our seas. Right now, our beautiful biodiversity heavens are facing an unconstitutional onslaught of industrial energy projects. As you have rightly warned in Parliament, a chaotic, "whack-a-mole" approach to building massive Nationally Significant Infrastructure Projects is devastating the Suffolk coast. Both of the major proposed converter stations—for the Sea Link project and the LionLink project—are targeting sites right here east of Saxmundham. These massive industrial structures are being fenced onto Greenfield areas and right
If Labour approves these industrial hubs in our rural sensitive ecological landscapes, it will prove a complete lack of empathy with our people's wishes, the lives of our children, and our planet. Developers cannot simply overrule community interests just because it is cheaper than building on brownfield sites or coordinating offshore networks. We must manage the cumulative impact of these schemes and safeguard our natural heritage. You must make a stand against climate change and environmental destruction, otherwise the first casualty will be the Labour Party. The stakes are huge, but this fight is winnable.
Please represent my views and use your voice to help stop Rosebank, fracking, and the destruction of our local SSSIs before it's too late.
Yours sincerely,
Ken Hutt
