RE: Interested party number: [REDACTED]
Mark Pym

I write further to my previous submissions and would also like to raise a formal complaint about National Grid. I think the responses to my submissions have been themed by National Grid in numerous documents, making it impossible for me to ascertain the detail of responses to my specific submissions. I can't even find the general themed responses.

This makes me feel that my submissions haven't been taken seriously. For instance the issue relating to our energy resilience is real, and as far as I can see my specific submission hasn't been answered, despite the national energy emergency, we now find ourselves in.

At the very least I would have expected National Grid to list what documents they have submitted and cross refers these, to my specific submissions. I am just one person and have work and other commitments, and do not have a large team working on this, so I find their response disingenuous.

May I ask that the Planning Inspectorate consider how to instruct National Grid to respond to my submissions in much more clarity and specifically.

Thank you for considering this.

Kind regards

Mark Pym
