

Re REP6-234 - the reply from National Grid to my objection does not explain the justification for assuming Pylons are the default solution. I am just give a boilerplate reply. In my area the solution proposed is NOT pylons is actually AC under-grounding and this choice has not been justified in any way against less damaging and disruptive alternative options - ie.. off shore and HVDC solutions used elsewhere in UK and Europe.