I am writing yet again in response to Part 1 with closure date 22/07/26 with reference to land acquisition & wildlife & potential bird strike at BAE Warton.

This is getting absolutely ridiculous, these points should have been resolved long before now.

I mentioned in my last submission and, I think, the one before, how many final dates for responses are we going to see? and here we are again with another one & another one to follow next month!

You still haven't found another party to take over the Morgan part of this project, which should tell you something, even wind farm backers/investors can see this is a non-starter! & not financially viable or they'd all be bidding on it & outbidding each other.

The new govt appears to have seen the light & word has it Labour is now promoting home grown energy production via Miatta Fahnbulleh, the new United Kingdom Secretary of State for energy security & net zero. She favours public ownership & criticises private or foreign control over foundational UK utilities.

I think anyone considering stepping into Morgans' shoes will be having a rethink as it appears more & more big companies are realising their gig is up & their ungreen plans have finally been seen for the con they are!
