Dear planning inspectorate,

The UNESCO Advisory Mission latest report reiterates that the A303 Stonehenge proposed scheme as it is now would have a seriously adverse impact on the World Heritage Site. Although National Highways tries to spin the report in favour of the scheme this is not what it says.

At the least, the tunnel should be longer so that major cuttings and earthworks are outside the Stonehenge landscape.

The former Transport Secretary agreed that the scheme would be significantly adverse.

I myself know the Stonehenge landscape well and the proposal to make these vast cuttings through it will attract world wide attention and adverse comment - quite rightly.

This appalling scheme should be abandoned and a better solution found.

with kind regards

Suzanne Keene
