In my view it comes down to three things Minister -

1. This immense project is not going to be an environmentally friendly one. The polar opposite in fact. You don't need to be a genius to work that one out...
2. Surrey and Sussex's infrastructure cannot cope currently. Gridlock, potholes and air/noise pollution. What on earth is it going to be like during construction and afterwards when the second runway is in full use.
3. I'm afraid (a cynical view I appreciate) that this is purely and simply a money-making exercise for Mr Wingate and Gatwick airport - one of the world's worst airports in my humble opinion. Cheapskates at best...

I take some hope from the fact that you're currently only 'minded to' (interesting choice of words) approve this awful white elephant.

I'm touching wood that you won't be able to bring yourself to give it the green light.

Thank you for listening.
